In Loving Memory

In 2020, OpUSA said goodbye to two longtime friends and board members:

Tom Moore, Jr.

Dr. Stanley Frileck

We honor them by celebrating their contributions to our work.

DEAR FRIENDS,

Natural disasters never stop, even in the middle of a pandemic.

We know that the state of our country and the world is challenging for so many of you right now, and we hope you know that we are working diligently to meet as many needs in as many places as possible. This year, OpUSA proudly stepped up to support our community here in Los Angeles—distributing hundreds of thousands of masks and other PPE to partners on the frontlines. We also helped supply New York City with masks; sent protective gear to aid recovery in California, Louisiana and other states where natural disasters compounded pandemic challenges; and, made grants to community-based organizations in hard-hit regions across the country. Beyond our borders, we sent vital relief shipments abroad to Central America and Africa, where recovery from devastating natural and manmade disasters is ongoing. A major shipment of medical equipment to Beirut, Lebanon is also in the works.

Often, I remind you that the ever-moving American election cycle siphons important funding away from our causes and from those of our nonprofit counterparts. In 2020, as we grappled with a pandemic unlike anything we've witnessed before, we also faced a historic Presidential election, and on top of it all, one of the worst hurricane seasons on record—all of which limited fundraising and exacerbated needs here in the U.S. and worldwide. Though we faced many new fundraising challenges, I am grateful for the continued support of donors like you, who have stepped up to give generously at a time when donations are critical to our ability to maintain our programs.

As our office staff adjusted to working remotely, while our warehouse activity soared to new heights, I am once again proud of Operation USA's ability to adapt, remain agile and reaffirm our mission to serve communities most in need of humanitarian support. I am also grateful for the support of our corporate partners, like Sony Music and Servicon, and of local partners like the City of Los Angeles, whose collaboration enabled us—in the face of unprecedented needs—to quickly and efficiently deliver more aid to more places.

Operation USA remains steadfast in its commitment to supporting marginalized children and families—through pandemics, economic setbacks and poverty, disasters and more. All of us here at OpUSA are so grateful for your continued investment in our work.

We can't do this without you.

Sincerely,

Richard Walden
President & CEO

2020 PANDEMIC RESPONSE

In February 2020, as the COVID-19 pandemic began spreading, OpUSA mobilized quickly—planning to provide relief aid wherever it was needed. By April, it had become clear that the pandemic would sweep the globe: decimating vulnerable communities, grinding supply chains to a halt, overwhelming our health care systems and creating many new challenges and needs in all corners of our country and the world. By Spring, an unprecedented response effort was underway.

As the pandemic evolved throughout 2020, stopping the spread of, mitigating the impact of and recovering from the virus developed into long-haul, collaborative efforts across the health and humanitarian sectors. OpUSA is so proud to have played a role in helping our community during this unfamiliar and scary time—leveraging our decades of experience in disaster response to get aid to those that needed it most.

Thanks to major donations of masks and other PPE from generous partners, OpUSA distributed nearly one million masks and hundreds of gallons of hand sanitizer to community-partners in Los Angeles and New York in 2020. We also shipped masks to communities hard-hit by natural disasters in California and Louisiana, and to already-vulnerable groups in South Dakota and abroad. Alongside material aid programs, OpUSA also distributed several grants to community-based organizations across the US—aimed at bolstering food security, improving access to housing and health care, supporting programs for children and families and protecting vulnerable population groups—and signed on as fiscal sponsor for Fuel Them LA, delivering nutritious meals to frontline workers.

As we look ahead to 2021, OpUSA remains committed to supporting pandemic response efforts wherever and however we are able, both through material aid and cash grants. We thank all donors who have made this vital work possible.

DOMESTIC DISASTER RESPONSE

OpUSA supported many community-based partners and programs this year with funding and supplies.

PARTNER-SPONSORED COVID-19 RELIEF GRANTS

With funds from generous corporate partners, OpUSA made eight grants to community-based partners in 2020 to support meaningful programs through the COVID-19 pandemic. We're so grateful for the opportunity to deliver aid to groups supporting children, families and other vulnerable groups. Grant recipients include: Education Through Music (New York, NY), The Austin Community Foundation (Austin, TX), Casa Central (Chicago, IL), Communities in Schools of Tennessee (Nashville, TN), Covenant House (New Orleans, LA), Focus: HOPE (Detroit, MI), World Harvest (Los Angeles, CA), and the Miami Diaper Bank (Miami, FL).

OpUSA was also pleased to deliver an additional grant, made possible by our generous donors, to World Harvest here in Los Angeles—bolstering access to healthy food for some of our community's most vulnerable families.

PINE RIDGE & ROSEBUD RESERVATIONS, SOUTH DAKOTA

Operation USA has supported partners on the Pine Ridge and Rosebud Reservations in South Dakota with funding, supplies and other project support for many years. In 2020, as the COVID-19 pandemic created new challenges for Native American populations, OpUSA once again partnered with local community-based organizations—delivering 50,000 masks to Oyata Teca, Generations Indigenous Ways and the Tokala Inajinyo Suicide Prevention Mentoring Project. We also provided Oyata Teca with a grant in support of a community garden project, helping improve access to nutritious food. These wonderful partners continue to inspire us with their dedication to helping their community contend with the COVID-19 crisis.

THE AWESOME GIRLS MENTORING PROGRAM

OpUSA has supported the Awesome Girls in New Orleans, Louisiana since 2006, and was pleased to be able to deliver two grants to the program in 2020, supporting ongoing projects and COVID-19 relief. We will continue to support the Awesome Girls—which helps young women thrive in the face of adversity—in the year ahead.

GULF COAST HURRICANE RELIEF

In August, Hurricane Laura struck the Gulf Coast. Hurricane Sally followed a few weeks later, and Hurricanes Delta and Zeta made landfall soon after. Communities all along the Gulf Coast struggled to recover from heavy winds, extreme rain, flooding and other damage brought by the hurricanes, all while the ongoing pandemic limited safe access to shelter sites and compounded challenges. OpUSA has long supported partners in Louisiana, where many vulnerable groups have struggled to recover since Hurricane Katrina devastated the area in 2005. This year, we once again committed to providing relief in as many ways as possible to support the hardest-hit communities, and in October shipped 25,000 masks and other emergency relief supplies to Port Charles, LA to support ongoing relief and recovery.

CALIFORNIA WILDFIRE RESPONSE

Following the pattern of previous years, California's 2020 wildfire season was deadly and devastating. Conditions were made more challenging by the ongoing pandemic, which limited access to N95 masks, safe shelter sites and basic necessities, like food and water. OpUSA remains committed to our neighbors in need, and continued to support wildfire relief and recovery programs this year. In February, we delivered a major grant to partners at On The Move, supporting ongoing recovery for vulnerable youths. In September, we delivered 10,000 protective masks and a shipment of relief supplies to partners in Healdsburg. In October, we delivered an additional 15,000 masks along with air filters and other emergency supplies for distribution to impacted families. We're so pleased to be able to support fire-impacted families as they work on rebuilding their lives and building resiliency for future disasters.

FUEL THEM LOS ANGELES

In April, as COVID-19 began to take a harsh toll on over-worked frontline healthcare workers, Crateful Catering approached OpUSA with a partnership opportunity. We soon signed on as nonprofit advisor and fiscal sponsor for Crateful's newly-launched "Fuel Them" initiative—a uniquely-modeled program which enabled shuttered kitchens at local restaurants and their staff to put their culinary skills to good use preparing hot meals for those working on the front lines of the pandemic. As a result, OpUSA processed nearly $30,000 in donations for the program—getting nearly 1,300 nutritious meals and cold brew coffees to health care heroes. We're proud to have played a small role in this meaningful program.

INTERNATIONAL SHIPMENTS

Though much of our work was centered here at home in the U.S. this year, we also sent two major international shipments to partners in 2020.

MOZAMBIQUE: SUPPORTING ONGOING CYCLONE RECOVERY

In 2019, Africa was struck by Cyclone Idai, one of the worst storms on record for the continent. The cyclone devastated the port city of Beira, killed more than 1,300 people, and created a lasting humanitarian crisis in the area. OpUSA committed to response in the storm's wake, and is pleased to have launched a shipment of much-needed medical supplies and hospital equipment to partners in Mozambique in 2020. We're grateful to our generous in-kind donors who make relief shipments like this possible.

CENTRAL AMERICA: COVID-19 RELIEF

As the pandemic swept the globe in 2020, OpUSA re-committed to longtime partners in vulnerable countries where we have previously worked, seeking opportunities to provide aid in as many ways as possible. In El Salvador, where COVID-19 cases are high, we supplied partners with hospital equipment and medical supplies, as well as clothes, toys and sports uniforms for kids. We're so pleased to have been able to provide this meaningful material aid where it is needed most.

OPERATION USA & VIETNAM

...40 YEARS LATER

It was early summer 1979 when Richard Walden first had the idea: Grounded but still functional airplanes could be filled with supplies donated by American corporations and flown to the other side of the world for the Vietnamese “Boat People” refugees languishing off the coast of Malaysia. With just a few phone calls, a collaborative effort to assemble a historic airlift to a people in need was underway, and an NGO was born.

Operation USA (known as Operation California in the early days) was founded on agility and efficiency, with a commitment to collaboration that didn't yet exist in the early 1980s. Mr. Walden believed the restrictions and bureaucracy that came along with government funding were an unnecessary evil. The most effective way to maximize impact, he thought, was to facilitate connections between private donors and the people on the ground who were best equipped to distribute materials and implement programs. He was right: With a broad network of friends, classmates and colleagues in his Rolodex, and a natural talent for fundraising, he went on to deliver $450 million in aid to 101 countries in the four decades since that first airlift—all the while remaining committed to the people of Vietnam through a variety of programs aimed at helping immigrants, bolstering hospitals, public health and agriculture, and empowering women.

loaded 20,000 lbs. of today's relief in the first 24 hours of the operation. Richard Walden, a Los Angeles attorney, and Llewellyn Werner, a Los Angeles businessman, have been working since the inception of the project, which has drawn donations from about 25 corporations and individuals.

Yesterday, Walden and Werner and 10 aides worked for more than four hours loading the 12,000 pounds of supplies from the 12,000 trailer. After the loading was completed, the trailer was driven to a depot near Los Angeles International Airport. The supplies were to be loaded onto a Boeing 707 today and flown to Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

In 2020, because Vietnam's successful handling of COVID-19 resulted in few confirmed cases and deaths, companies in the country with the capacity to secure or produce masks sought to send aid internationally. OpUSA's partners at the U.S. Embassy in Hanoi recognized an opportunity for Vietnam to support the American people by partnering with OpUSA, and helped facilitate the effort to deliver millions of masks from Vietnam—bringing our relationship with the country full circle, forty years later.

As American cities—Los Angeles in particular—have struggled to contain the spread of COVID-19 and mitigate its impact, the generous donation of masks from Vietnam has been an important component of OpUSA's COVID-19 response efforts. To date, masks have been distributed to more than thirty-six community partners in Los Angeles, New York and elsewhere in the U.S., helping to protect our country's most vulnerable.

We are so proud of our continued friendship with Vietnam, and the collaborative spirit through which this major relief effort came to fruition. As we forge ahead into 2021, we are reminded of our earliest days, when hopes were high and the shared goal of creating a better world for all people brought together many players across the public and private sectors. We are determined to reignite that passion with all our partners in the year ahead!

WAREHOUSE MVP

TONY SHANNON

Since our earliest days, a major element of OpUSA's work has been our in-kind shipping program—through which we've delivered millions of dollars worth of medical equipment, relief materials and other supplies to communities in need. This decades-long program would not succeed without the passion and commitment of our dedicated warehouse staff members.

This year, despite personal risk, our Warehouse Director Tony Shannon single-handedly facilitated the receipt and distribution of millions of masks and other PPE, hundreds of gallons of hand sanitizer and myriad other relief supplies for community-based partners here at home and around the world. While the ongoing pandemic continues to ravage communities close and far, Tony's tireless work has ensured that OpUSA will continue to fulfill its mission of getting aid where it's needed most.

Thank you, Tony!

OPUSA'S ANNUAL

Holiday Drive

Every December, OpUSA organizes a drive to provide holiday gifts and gift cards to children and teens in the Greater Los Angeles area. In 2020, as the COVID-19 pandemic continued to ravage our city's most vulnerable families, we're pleased to have provided gifts for more than 300 families. In addition to items such as toys, games and sporting equipment, we also provided gift cards for nearly 100 teens, and delivered baby care items, blankets, books and other supplies to support families in need into the new year. The generous support of our donors made this effort possible.

Our longtime partners at Homeless Health Care LA distributed the gifts to families across Los Angeles, providing little ones and teens who might not otherwise receive anything with some extra holiday love and cheer. As their families face mounting challenges due to job loss, decreased access to health care, illness, and food and housing insecurity, these gifts will no doubt bring smiles and have a meaningful impact. We're so proud to be able to once again support this worthy cause.

PARTNER SPOTLIGHT

SONY MUSIC ENTERTAINMENT

As COVID-19 swept the country in 2020, quickly devastating already-vulnerable populations, corporate partners stepped up to provide much-needed relief in our country's hardest-hit communities. In May, Sony Music Entertainment approached us with a passion for and commitment to providing financial support to community-based organizations across the U.S.—particularly in Black and Latinx communities. By July, in partnership with Sony Music, OpUSA had distributed funds to eight organizations. These grants had a meaningful impact on programs focusing on music and the arts, education, youth services, housing, food security, workforce development and health.

We are so grateful for the company's swift action and generosity, which enabled us to better fulfill our mission of bolstering programs and initiatives supporting children and families when they needed it most.

PARTNER SPOTLIGHT

SERVICON

Michael Mahdesian has been Chairman of the Board at Operation USA for many years, and throughout his service to our organization has leveraged his position as Chairman of Servicon—an environmental services company—to support OpUSA's programs with both funding and in-kind donations. In 2020, OpUSA partnered with Servicon to deliver masks and PPE to community-based organizations across Los Angeles, resulting in several distributions to vulnerable populations.

We're so grateful for Servicon's generous donation of transportation services, and the volunteerism of their staff, which helped to supply hundreds of thousands of Angelenos with this much-needed protective gear. Thank you, Servicon!
